

ABSTRACT

In a coolant recovery system of a vehicle, a coolant reservoir is connected at its upper portion to a radiator by a first pressure cap and a first ventilation hose, and to an engine by a second ventilation hose that is provided with a check valve thereon.